ABOUT THUN

Thun 1794 a.s. is a Czech porcelain manufacturer with a rich history dating back to the late 18th century. This factory is the oldest porcelain factory in the Czech Republic, and its history is closely linked with the tradition of porcelain production in Bohemia.

- In the 19th century, Thun became a significant porcelain producer in Europe. Thanks to the quality and artistic craftsmanship, the products from this factory found their way into many households and noble courts.
- After nationalization in 1945, the porcelain factory became part of the national enterprise Karlovarský porcelán. Following the Velvet Revolution in 1989, the factory underwent restructuring and privatization, leading to modernization and a renewed increase in production quality.

Today, Thun 1794 a.s. is the largest Czech porcelain manufacturer. Thun focuses on producing high-quality porcelain for both household and gastronomy purposes.

Modern porcelain production at Thun utilizes advanced technologies while still preserving traditional craftsmanship methods that ensure high product quality.

The company collaborates with leading Czech designers and artists, allowing it to continuously innovate and introduce new collections that combine traditional craftsmanship with modern design.
